National organizations protesting Trump administration policies demonstrated at an estimated 2,000 locations across the country on Saturday, June 14 under the banner “No Kings.” In Massachusetts alone, more than 100 demonstrations were planned.

In Boston, Indivisible Mass Coalition, Mass 50501, and other groups encouraged No Kings demonstrators who preferred to attend the Downtown Boston rally to show solidarity with the LGBTQIA+ community by lining the Pride 2025 Parade route from Copley Square to the Boston Common and participating in the Pride festival scheduled at the Common. Despite light rain and chilly winds, media outlets estimated 1 million marched or lined the route and then gathered in the Common where several hundred booths of vendors and community groups were on display.

Boston residents came prepared with signs to protest the administration's policies.

Faulkner dedicates new patient wing and garage

Richard Heath

While the project began at an in-person meeting in the hospital auditorium on Aug. 22, 2019, the ribbon cutting for the newly completed, 78-bed patient wing and 950-space garage for Jamaica Plain's own Faulkner Hospital took place on June 4.

After finally getting approvals from the Mass. Health Council of the Mass. Public Health Commission on May 22, 2022, construction began with a $100 million construction permit for the five-story in-patient wing and five-story garage on Allandale Street designed by George Takoudis, principal architect of NBBJ Architects.

The lengthy review process, including three community meetings as reported by The Bulletin, increased the cost from $250 million in 2019 to $280 million in 2022.

Given the stress the public puts on parking at every meeting involving buildings, the garage is twice the size of the patient wing built for the hospital's mission.

Parking concerns from Brownson Terrace, Whitcomb Avenue and Malcolm Road residents dominated the Boston Planning and Development Agency (now the Boston Planning Department) public meetings on the Faulkner expansion.

The garage has a separate exit cut into the hillside slope op-

Together Yes Hyde Park held its fifth annual Juneteenth celebration at the New Mission High School over the weekend, with speakers, stalls, tables, food, music, dance and community awards drawing hundreds of residents.

The celebration was moved to the school when the weather threatened, but organizer Marcia Kimm said it was still an amazing event. “I even got a little dancing in!” she said with a laugh.

The celebration saw residents go through educational booths, community booths, vendors, food stalls and more. Kimm said the day saw more than 150 bags of free food and produce given away, as well as more than $1,000 in door prizes.

Awards were given to those who focused on building an inclusive and equitable Boston and Hyde Park and winners included – Jay Paget,

While the weather on Saturday forced the celebration inside, still hundreds came out to celebrate Juneteenth in Hyde Park.

MHC hears about blocked sidewalks and 311 efficiency

Darvence Chery
Staff Reporter

The Mount Hope Canterbury Neighborhood Association (MHC) met on June 12 to discuss concerns related to the Hyde Park/Roslindale neighborhood including the efficiency of 311 reporting locally, neighborhood crime, and the Welcome Home initiative in the Boston Police Department (BPD) District E-18.

Several neighbors were concerned regarding a 311 report filed by MHC member Rick Yoder about the walkway at 375 Cummins Hwy. after he observed the fencing from construction blocking the sidewalk.

“This construction site at 375 Cummins Hwy is blocking neighbors from using this often-used sidewalk. Now they are forced to walk in the roadway with the moving vehicles” Yoder stated in his 311 report on April 22.

Yoder recommended that there be a second Jersey barrier fence parallel to the first, installed on the curb side of the first fence, with a 45-foot clearance between the two.

Yoder claims that the city had no resolution until nearly 50 days after his report was filed, as plastic orange barriers were put in place to prevent pedestrians from being in danger walking on the road.

“We live in a neighborhood with so many walking attractions,” shared Lisa Bateman, co-chair of the MHC. “Something like this going unreported for so long hinders people from being engaged in the city.”

In an email exchange, Marc

Joseph, Deputy Building Commissioner of the City of Boston on May 21 stated to Yoder that “this issue must be addressed by the Public Works and the Boston Transportation Departments since they’re the ones who have jurisdictional authority over the sidewalk and the street.”

Yoder said he is still in contact with city officials about the sidewalk as he believes that the barriers are not enough to keep pedestrians safe.

According to the City of Boston website – <https://tinyurl.com/pzjda9ah> – City Realty is the project proponent and is seeking to construct a new residential building measuring approximately 50,000 square feet located at 375 Cummins Hwy. to house 49 rental units. This is the reason for the fencing to extend out into the street.

Residents sounded off against this project back when it was originally proposed, as the neighborhood contends it needs more homeownership units. The MHC opposed the project before final approvals in the Zoning Board of Appeals.

This issue of the street being blocked for so long brought up a brief discussion about the efficiency of the 311 report and solutions to speeding up the process.

The 311 reporting system was launched in 2015 by then Mayor Marty Walsh as a platform to better enable residents of Boston to report non-emergency issues to the City, such as graffiti and broken street lights, and access City services, according to the City of Boston’s original press release about it on August 11, 2015.

Hearing held on HP health access

Community health center discussed

Matthew MacDonald
Staff Reporter

Last Thursday, June 12, the Boston City Council’s Committee on Public Health, Homelessness and Recovery held a public hearing regarding health access in Hyde Park.

It took place in the auditorium of Hyde Park’s New Mission High School, rather than City Hall’s Iannella Chamber, and brought four city councilors and more than 50 residents together to address the neighborhood’s lack of – and need for – a community health center.

Hyde Park is one of two Boston neighborhoods (West Roxbury is the other) that do not have health centers, and it outpaces the rest of the city in a number of bad health categories.

Most glaring among them is its infant mortality rate (death before a newborn’s first birthday), which leads all neighborhoods. Other out-of-the-ordinary Hyde Park health statistics that were brought up and returned to throughout the hearing with concern included maternal health, high premature mortality rate (death before age 65) from heart disease, hospitalizations related to diabetes, and asthma-related emergency room visits for children.

The hearing was co-sponsored by District 5 City Councilor Enrique Pepén and City Council President Ruthzee Louijeune. It was, however, driven along by the seven-person community panel that shared the stage with the committee for its first hour and a quarter.

The panel was comprised of members of the Hyde Park

Health and Wellness Center Steering Committee. Officially formed in late 2023 with the goal of bringing a health center to the community, the group and its mission first took shape back in 2020 – spurred into action by healthcare inequities in the neighborhood that were exposed as a result of the pandemic.

A recurring talking point throughout the hearing – during panelist statements, Q&A, and public testimony – had to do with the distance and time required to commute to health care provider locations; some referenced car rides through the city to downtown hospitals/health centers, while others referred to lengthier

WRFORP THANKS SUPPORTERS
To the Editor:
West Roxbury Friends of Rosie’s Place wants to give a big heartfelt thanks to the many longtime and new supporters who joined us on Monday, June 9th, at The Substation in Roslindale for a fun time and a very successful fundraiser to benefit Rosie’s Place and the Roslindale Food Pantry.
A special thanks to The Substation for hosting our event. This was our first fundraiser in The Substation’s historic, but uniquely contemporary event space and beer hall. After quenching their thirst at the full bar, hungry supporters satisfied their appetite with pizza and other finger food provided by Wegmans and Seasons Catering.
The multi-generational crowd, from babies to octogenarians, added to the festive atmosphere. Thanks to everyone for their generosity and participation in the fundraiser’s raffle. Lucky winners took home gift cards and items donated by local businesses and friends: Russ & Mimi’s, Mi Finca, Avery & Co, Birch St. House & Garden, Create: Art in the Community, The Square Root, Super Flash, and Red Sox items and tickets, to name just a few. Local artists, Zara Woodhead and Amanda Casarjian added sparkle to the raffle table with their creative donations.
Thanks to your participation, and the generosity of our corporate donors, Roche Bros and Brookline Bank, we met our goal to raise more than last year and, importantly, are able to help our food insecure neighbors in need.
With appreciation,
WRFORP Board

Summer vs. Sumner

My Kind of Town/
Joe Galeota

As a kid, whenever the calendar flipped to June and summer vacation for Our Lady of Lourdes School’s pupils was imminent, I always looked forward to visiting my Uncle Tom Sullivan’s cottage on Sachem Street in Revere. By today’s standards it might not have been that great of a beach house but to a kid living in a triple decker, the Revere visit—coupled with my Aunt Rita and Uncle Eddie also visiting at the same time—was a wonderful night, coming right after supper and the five o’clock rush.
The trip from JP to the Revere beach house, set back two hundred yards or so from the beach probably halfway between Bianchi’s Pizza and the Virginia Reel, took us through a tunnel and back home over the Mystic River Bridge (now named after a politician).
I always referred to the tunnel as the “Summer” Tunnel because that was the time of year when we passed through it; of course, its proper name is the “Sumner” Tunnel, named after not just any politician but a courageous one, who because of his political beliefs endured an injury unlike those received by any others. In fact, it almost killed him.
If you think the lack of civility in the House Chambers in Washington, D.C, is poor these days, think back 169 years to May 22, 1856, when physical combat occurred. Our own Senator Charles Sumner, a Massachusetts antislavery Republican, addressed the Senate on the explosive issue of whether Kansas should be admitted to the Union as a slave state or a free state. In his speech, Sumner identified two Democratic senators as the principal culprits in this crime—the famed Stephen Douglas of Illinois and Andrew Butler of South Carolina. Ridiculing Douglas to his face with personal insults, he was equally disrespectful to Butler, who was not present.

Representative Preston Brooks informed his relative Andrew Butler of South Carolina of the characterization. The now fully enraged Brooks, equipped with a cane, entered the Senate after it had adjourned for the day, where he found Sumner busily attaching his postal frank to a speech.

Reacting to the invectives heaped upon his relative, Brooks slammed his metal-topped cane onto the unsuspecting Sumner’s head. After Brooks repeatedly struck Sumner, the latter—bleeding profusely—was carried away.
Brooks walked calmly out of the chamber without being detained by the stunned onlookers. Overnight, both men became heroes in their respective regions.
Surviving a House censure resolution, Brooks resigned, was immediately reelected, and soon thereafter died at age 37.
Sumner convalesced, returning only intermittently over the next three years. He resumed full-time duties in 1859 and during the next 15 years became a trailblazing legislator who left an indelible mark on the Senate and the country. His tireless efforts with abolition and civil rights defined his career.
Boston’s Charles Sumner School in Roslindale is being merged next fall with the Phineas Bates School and the Washington Irving School building. Let’s hope the Boston School Department, which had eliminated the “Phyllis Wheatley” from being a school name, does not do likewise to Charles Sumner, the civil rights activist with an “N” in his sometimes confusing name.

posite Springhouse and the original entrance opposite Brownson is for ambulances, shuttle buses, pick-ups and drop-offs and an entrance to the appropriately named Hillside Garage.

The new garage replaced the existing 580-car garage nearest Whitcomb which is now completely demolished. The new parking structure is at the rear of the hospital, and its construction was the most dramatic to watch as the entire hill was dug out over a two-year period and the garage set into the excavated bowl.

The five-story garage has two floors tucked into the hillside and was built of precast modular beams manufactured off site and trucked on flatbeds to the site up Whitcomb Avenue.

The genius of the garage design is the long, parallel green rods on the Allandale Street side breaking up the otherwise dull grey façade of the parking shelves.

Landscape architect Mark Klopner melted it into the hillside with extensive and expensive plantings of 190 new trees, plus many shrubs and a wide variety of ground covers.

Vice president of clinical services for Brigham and Womens Faulkner Hospital, Susan Dempsey, told the community at the Oct. 4, 2022 hybrid meeting announcing the start of construction that work would be completed in April 2025; rarely is a completion date that accurate.

Groundbreaking took place on October 26, 2022.

Dempsey came up to The Bulletin before the opening ceremonies and said she was most proud of the garage and the convenient access it now provides for staff, patients and visitors alike.

She also loved all the new trees and shrubs “which will grow up all around it,” she said.

The in-patient wing, tucked into the south corner of the curved entrance pavilion, has gone through significant design changes largely to satisfy the Boston Civic Design Commission that reviewed the plans in 2019 and 2020.

Set above the Allandale Street entrance, the two-tones of grey building with vertical rods and panels that mimic the garage, sits atop the existing one-story wing of the portico built in 1975.

This replaced the cafeteria which was relocated to the third floor of the 1975 addition where the ribbon cutting was held.

Floors three to five of the new building have 26 single patient rooms on each floor, 78 total; an increase of 46 percent according to the Faulkner.

Floors one and two has an expanded endoscopy suite and three additional MRI rooms among other patient service areas.

The 30-minute ceremony was full of the usual thank you’s (as well as trays of hors d’oeuvres) when Kevin Giordano president of Brigham and Womens’ Faulkner Hospital opened the ceremony at 5:30 p.m.

“Just delighted to celebrate the extension of in-patient care,” he said.

“So many people to thank, especially NBBJ architects who made his absolutely spectacular building possible.”

“It was a long road getting here. Thank you to all the neighbors. They were key partners, engaged supportive and collaborative. A huge thank you,” Giordano said.

Giordano – unlike most ribbon cutters – paid respects to the past explaining that the Faulkner was established as a private hospital by Dr. George Faulkner on 16 acres. “It opened in 1903,” Giordano said. “And it soon had to face an extraordinary health crisis with the typhoid epidemic of 1908” matched by “an extraordinary healthcare by all the nurses who were kind in every way.”

“Where am I going with all this history?” Giordano said. “We remain the same, a wonderful hospital. That’s what makes us the Faulkner.”

According to Serena Bronda of Mass General Brigham, the first patient is expected in June 2025.

Dr. David Brown, President of Academic Centers at Mass. General Brigham said he had just walked the campus with some physicians. “This is a new hospital,” he said, noting the increased capacity. “It gives as much care as possible. Thank you to the physicians, nurses and staff.”

Two white-coated doctors were in the audience.

Dr. Anne Klibanski, CEO of Mass General Brigham followed Dr. Brown. “There hasn’t been a new bed here since the ‘70s.” she said. 2022 groundbreaking, 769 days ago, The best researched and informed care close to where the patients are,” Klibanski said, “in a natural setting here with a view of the Arboretum.

“There are extraordinarily challenges in health care every day,” she said, “but we can all do this together, what we have control over, our knowledge and wisdom to focus on the future.”

Andrea Baxter closed out the ceremony saying, “I was a breast cancer survivor, but now I have a new title; I am a former patient.”

“The mammogram saved my life,” she said. “Early detection and the extraordinary care I received here; unforgettable. The kindness, the care and compassion of the nurses, unforgettable.”

And Baxter joined by all the other speakers clipped the blue ribbon.

“I proclaim this building ready to open,” announced Giordano.

The Faulkner Hospital expansion may have made the neighbors nervous, but it didn’t seem to hurt property values.

While the Faulkner was going through construction, CAD Builders of Canton bought the 1954 Decelles house at 12 Brownson terrace across the street.

CAD razed it, jack-hammered the corner lot, puddingstone ledge, and built three, high-end, four-bedroom homes; listed in spring of 2025 from $2.3 to $2.5 million.

How do I apply for Social Security?

Dear Rusty: I just turned 65 years old in February 2025. I need to sign up for Social Security but don't even know where to start.

Signed:
Seeking Assistance

Dear Seeking: It is fairly easy to sign up for your Social Security benefits, by either calling the Social Security Administration at 1.800.772.1213 or your local SS office, to make a telephone appointment to apply, or by completing your application for Social Security benefits online at www.ssa.gov/apply. However, to apply for benefits online you will need to first create your personal "my Social Security" account at www.ssa.gov/myaccount. Once you have your personal account set up, you can apply directly from that account and also see an estimate of your SS benefits at different ages.

You may already be aware that age 65 is not your Social Security full retirement age, or "FRA." Your FRA is when you get 100% of the benefit you've earned from a lifetime of working. By taking benefits at age 65, your monthly amount will be reduced (to about 87% of your FRA amount; a permanent reduction). Born in 1960, your FRA is age 67, which means you will be taking your SS benefit about two years early and also means that – if you are still working – you will be subject to Social Security's Annual Earnings Test (AET). The AET limits how much you can earn before some of your benefits are taken away. For 2025, the annual earnings limit is $23,400 and, if that is exceeded, SS will take back $1 in benefits for every $2 you are over the limit (they take benefits back by withholding future payments long enough to recover what you owe).

This article is intended for information purposes only and does not represent legal or financial guidance. It presents the opinions and interpretations of the AMAC Foundation's staff, trained and accredited by the National Social Security Association (NSSA). NSSA and the AMAC Foundation and its staff are not affiliated with or endorsed by the Social Security Administration or any other governmental entity. To submit a question, visit our website (amacfoundation.org/programs/social-security-advisory) or email us at ssadvisor@amacfoundation.org.

Russell Gloor
AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor

So, you can apply for your Social Security benefits, as indicated above, either online or by calling SS for an appointment. Just be aware that by applying at age 65 your benefit will be permanently reduced, and you will be subject to Social Security's earnings limit (the earnings limit lasts until you reach your FRA, after which you can earn as much as you like without penalty).

Also, because you are 65, if you wish to enroll in Medicare, please be aware that you don't need to take your Social Security benefits to enroll in Medicare. You can enroll in Medicare (only) by calling Social Security as explained above or enrolling in Medicare online. Here is a link which explains how to enroll in only Medicare: <https://www.ssa.gov/medicare/sign-up>.

I hope this information is helpful, and please know that the AMAC Foundation is always available to answer your questions. If it's easier, you can also speak directly to one of our certified Social Security Advisors by calling us during normal EST business hours at 1.888.750.2622. We cannot submit your SS application for you, but we can answer all questions you have about applying.

the nearby protests, Boston, Brookline, Newton...because people have different schedules, different comfort zones around crowd size, and different transportation needs. I want people to find what works for them."

Poliner said she was getting messages from people saying this would be the first protest they have ever been to in their lives. She feels that some people may be "seeing a new urgency for action."

Nina Lev, a Progressive WR/Roz member, chose to attend the Boston rally. She watched the Pride parade for two hours and walked up to the Common for what was a meet-up, festival, and vendor event. "I wanted to be with a big number of people. I wanted to see how big it felt. There are no bad decisions. It's important to be counted somewhere." She said she wanted to see the diversity of a crowd. "It was everybody. It felt like a very joyous peaceful day... every part of Boston was represented."

The Common was filled with booths and groups of demonstrators. Laua Weisel and Tom Hallock from Force Multiplier were attending the festival along with about seven other members.

"We started in Brookline in 2017. We're now a national organization of 20,000 donors over time," said Weisel. "Our theory of change is that we need a blue Congress if we going to make progress on climate change, immigration, guns, reproductive choice, and LBT rights."

The group studies close races that Democrats have won and looks for ways to support them in coming elections.

"Those are the campaigns we want our donors to invest in." Hallock said they also focus at the local level. "Most of our work is really through online events but we're also doing a lot of organizing as we are today. We mobilize our community ... to come to No Kings demonstrations around the country, to stand up and stand together." Pointing to the crowds around him at the Common, Hallock continued, "There's a commonality here, so we're united in a common cause opposing this totalitarian administration."

Pam Poindexter, who leads a few Indivisible groups, was manning a table of information about their organization. "This is an opportunity to remind people that what's going on in D.C. is not right, not normal. It's a sense of community, bringing people together. A community like this gives them a sense that we're not alone," said Poindexter.

Susan Labandibar, coordinator for the Swing Blue Alliance, was offering some creative items at her table for purchase. Swing Blue has been working since 2018 against Donald Trump and to get Joe Biden elected. The goals now have changed.

"We're the largest grassroots organization of its kind and we're all volunteer," said Labandibar. "After the election we got back up off the ground lying prostrate, expanded our strategies to kind of attack the antecedents. One woman said to me I'm never voting again ...it's hard confronting that day after day."

Part of the group focuses on the Trump agenda. The Fascist Fortune cookies on sale are what Labandibar calls creative resistance with cookies.

"Nothing is More America than Overthrowing a King". Bumper stickers and toilet paper with Trump's image on them were also available. "It gives us the courage to go on, laughing ... and being together," she said.

Allie Bledsoe and Nick Nyhart, both from Dorchester, came out to support the LGBTQ+ community and protest other issues. "I work in a Boston Public School. Our kids are largely from other countries and I'm terrified about what's going to happen to them," said Bledsoe. Nyhart said, "In this moment when so many groups are being attacked, I feel America is under attack from within...the element of cruelty makes it all worse"

Noise complaints again at ERNA

Dilani Yogaratnam
Staff Reporter

During an East River Neighborhood Association (ERNA) meeting, held virtually on June 9, a Hyde Park resident named Vanessa made an impassioned complaint about a recent noise disturbance on her street, which she said she believes the police did not take seriously enough, despite the history of this household.

On Saturday, June 7, Vanessa received calls from her elderly neighbors of loud sounds coming from a graduation party on Birchcroft Road.

She said loud disruptions used to occur regularly, just a couple of years ago and then things calmed down. "Screaming, screaming, I thought there was a fight breaking out so I called 911 and received a bunch of push-back."

Dispatch callers wanted an exact location of the noise and Vanessa said it was Birchcroft Road down to Pinewood, covering a large area, which are all dead end streets.

"It was a private party but it became public," as attendees blocked driveways and the road itself. "They had kids running up and down the streets, in people's yards. You couldn't say anything and the parents were encouraging them. If it's a private party, then it should be private. Saturday night it was beyond ridiculous."

Trash was another issue. She said the street cleaning has not begun to take care of the volume of trash left behind from the party. Vanessa argued that she pays her taxes and rents party goers using her space for their entertainment.

"This person needs to be cited. You cannot have 500 people up and down Birchcroft taking up every inch of space."

Cecily Graham, deputy director of neighborhood services, including Hyde Park, jumped onto the call to ask about the address of the home and recommended the Problems Properties Taskforce oversee this issue as protocols are in place to handle these scenarios.

Boston Police Department District E-18 Community Service Officer Paul Broderick was also on the call, and he said he looked up the address and said no radio calls came through regarding this house since January.

“Exactly what I said,” Vanessa said. Moving forward, Broderick said if it becomes an ongoing issue again police will cite them but since they have been quiet all year he is not able to take action.

A resident, going by Rande, asked Broderick if a person has a family member in E-18 would officers not visit the house. Broderick said absolutely not and then doubted if the noisy house or “house of horrors” as Vanessa called them even had family members at E-18. At this point, moderator of the meeting, Patricia Odom, a veteran, said she has repeatedly confronted residents of this house to keep noise levels low and members told her they had family members on E-18.

“That doesn’t mean it’s true,” Broderick said.

In other news, several residents complained about cars parking all day long near Lewiston Park for more than their allotted time. Questions of permitting and rights and concerns about day drinking came forward during the meeting. Neighbor Joy Oliver said some of the residents block drive-ways and when she confronted the vehicle owner she received a dismissive response, so Oliver threatened to call 911 and the person relented and moved their car. Oliver also said the noise levels from the Lewiston Park were extreme.

“It’s very tough around here on weekends,” she said. Oliver inquired if there was a noise ordinance in Boston and Broderick said yes. And basically, neighbors are required to call 911 each time noise levels reach a point of discomfort.

“Permits are like a reservation,” Broderick said, to explain why sports leagues have the flexibility to remain on streets surrounding the parks to all hours of the night.

“This league is taking up all the space in the park, all the parking spaces,” Oliver said, not giving residents a chance to use the space. “I have complained to the parks department and I guess I will continue to do that.”

Resident Lydia said she is unable to charge her electric vehicle because other cars are blocking the charging stations.

The Bulletin

Broderick said since signs clearly state that the areas are for electric vehicles then those cars would be ticketed.

Daniel Milbrandt, active transportation planner/vision zero planner for the city, said that a meeting will take place on June 26 to address structural and design issues on Wood Avenue. Readers may remember the death of four-year-old Ivan Pierre in 2023 on Wood Avenue due to a hit-and-run.

Milbrandt encouraged feedback regarding his team’s efforts to improve safety and changing “intersection geometry.” He said he is hoping to wrap up design and begin construction next year. Resident Lydia suggested putting lines on the corners of streets to prevent cars from parking there. Milbrandt called this day-lighting treatment which would come from a repaving project which is separate from his department.

State Rep. Robert Consalvo joined the call and said he is excited that the Doyle Playground Project is underway and on budget. The playground along Neponset River has been in disrepair over the decades. It has also been the focus of a reconstruction project for the better part of a decade, headed by the state.

“You can see the construction underway and we’re thrilled for that.”

Miguel Gallego, Tasha Hull, Dana and Marinelle Rousmaniere, Elias Akiki and Malika Whitley, for her efforts to support veterans. The 2025 MLK Community Builders, honored in January, was featured at Juneteenth with banners and legislative awards.

Boston Mayor Michelle Wu, Senator Ayanna Pressley, State Rep. Brandy Fluker Reid, State Rep. Rob Consalvo, City Council President Ruthzee Louijeune and District 5 City Councilor Enrique Pepén also spoke during the show.

Kimm herself read out Frederick Douglass' famous speech, "What to the Slave is the Fourth of July?" The speech focuses on the two experiences in the United States, those of freedom and those of state-sponsored oppression.

"That speech is about the paradox we still have in this country around freedom for some and not for all," she said.

Kimm said she was happy to have so many residents celebrate the season and come together to build community around that ideal of freedom.

The holiday of Juneteenth celebrates the day – traditionally at least – that the last slaves in the United States heard the proclamation that the Confederacy had lost, and that all slaves were by law, free.

Demonstrations from members of the 54th Massachusetts Regiment Reenactors, who portray those Black Americans who fought to free those suffering in servitude were also on display.

And, as Kimm mentioned, there were many organizations at the event focused on community. Talia Whyte said the Rozzie Bound Co-Op Bookstore is one of those organizations.

"We're the only cooperative book store in Massachusetts," she said. "And as a community book store we feel it's important to be a part of community events. Juneteenth is definitely an event that is supporting the Black community in Boston, supporting the values of Black resilience and Black joy, and we're giving away books by Black authors today, as well as selling copies of Liz Walker's book. We just want to provide access to books because there isn't a book store in Hyde Park and so we wanted to show our support to this community."

Whyte said the store is owned by both employees and patrons, as patrons can pay $100 to buy-in and invest in the store.

“There are three work owners: me, Judy McLure and Anna Crowley, and we have over 100 consumer owners,” Whyte said. “It helps keep the sustainability of the business.”

Valerie Molyneaux came out with the Vitiligo Friends Group – a part of the Global Vitiligo Foundation – to raise awareness of the skin condition and, again, help build community.

"It's a celebration of history and it's important," Molyneaux said. "When Marcia first asked us five years ago to come we said yes, and we will continue to say yes, because this is important to all of us. We set aside this day to celebrate everyone; all races, all genders here, it's a beautiful thing."

Vitiligo is an autoimmune disease that affects the pigment of one's skin, creating discoloration in those afflicted. Molyneaux said the organization raises awareness of the condition and helps educate kids – and anyone else for that matter – about the condition itself and to debunk any stigma around it.

“We’re showcasing books written by members of our community,” she said, adding that through lobbying Mattel, the group was able to compel the company to create three Vitiligo Barbie dolls.

Southwest Boston Community Development Corporation was also at the event, showcasing the group's efforts around environmental cleanups with the Green Team—<https://tinyurl.com/yc2w5s9t>—and its purchase and maintaining of affordable housing.

“So right now the Green Team is kicking off our 17th year,” said organizer Shekora Saint. “We now have a Woods Team and a Garden Team, and so we’re taking younger children to the community gardens and teaching them about the importance of growing their own food and protecting tree canopies. Last year they went to the Boston Nature Center and learned about gardening there.”

Board member Diana Kelly and Director Mary Celeste Brown said they were happy to represent the organization during Juneteenth.

"This is a huge community event and we are a community organization and what Marcia is doing here is very important," she said. "It's a great day of celebration that we wouldn't miss."

Switch owner Scott Batey said it was important to show up on Juneteenth because his art gallery artists are about half people of color.

"I was one of the founders with Marcia and it's a very important event to me," he said. "The Switch embodies the spirit of Juneteenth. We have about half our artists being BIPOC people, mostly from Hyde Park, and it's appropriate that we be here today. It's just such a great event."

Hyde Park Main Streets Director Thien Simpson said she was glad to see residents come out, despite the poor weather.

Meaningful Occasions CEO Iliana Ramirez said she was honored to have been asked to come to the event, and provided a free photo booth for patrons. “We’re here to celebrate Juneteenth because Marcia invited us, and we’re so honored to be here,” she said. “We’re a nonprofit organization that helps host events in the neighborhood. This is a meet-and-greet for the community to show what we do; rent out photo booths to support the nonprofit nature of the business.”

Currently, there are over 2 million issues resolved within 311 with over 300,000 open as of June 15.

The MHC hopes to follow up with city officials and speak to someone from the City of Boston responsible for the 311 reporting system to speak to them about troubleshooting some of the issues at their next meeting.

In other news, shoplifting is decreasing in the BPD District E-18 Area according to a report read by District 18 Community Service BPD Officer Matthew Conley at the meeting.

The downward trend of shoplifting in District 18 was attributed to increased police presence at Stop & Shop and Walgreens near American Legion Parkway and the CVS on Hyde Park Avenue.

“Having extra patrol and plainclothes officers on-site assisted efforts as when calls came in for potential shoplifting there were already police officers at previously targeted shoplifting sites,” shared Conley.

The meeting also further discussed the Welcome Home Building Committee meeting on May 20 and the need for more community engagement when it comes to development proposals locally. Additionally, the discussion led to neighborhood concerns that were voiced about the buildability of the property at the meeting. The lots were eventually withdrawn after concerns about potential flooding on the property if the development were to be completed were voiced.

Welcome Home is a City of Boston initiative to assist aspiring first-time homeowners in purchasing by identifying city-owned lots that could be developed into housing.

The property in question was a lot on Wilmot Street adjacent to Stonybrook Valley, where the intention was to put two, two-family homes.

ROSLINDALE GREEN & CLEAN UNSOLD PLANT SALE!

First, thanks to all of who attended our plant sale on Sunday and to those who contributed plants. Although we consider the sale a success, thanks to competition from Father’s Day we do have a good number of unsold plants. As a result, we’ll be doing a final clearance sale next Saturday, June 21, from 10 AM to 11:30 AM at 53 Prospect Avenue.

There are still some iris, daylilies, chrysanthemums, hostas, herbs, and a number of other perennials and shrubs.

Anyone who couldn’t come on Sunday and would like an even better bargain can get one as we’ll be offering the remaining plants on a Buy One, Get One Free (of equal or lower price) basis.

Any plants remaining after the clearance will be donated to a local urban wild.

If you have questions please email us at rgc.plantsale@gmail.com.
